

Visualize: Country living in Town

- A. Private backyard, countryside view of woods, lake or recreation from every home site. So private, you can build any style for your home, from French Country to Modern, even all glass with a rock wall and waterfall.
- B. Every front porch and neighborhood play area overlook Main Street. Very much like hill-towns of Italy or Spain.
- C. A Main Street with shops based on local culture and desire. Sidewalk cafes, flowers, food and friends. No cars.
- D. A comprehensive and carefully prepared concept that satisfies all environmental and development objectives. Direct access to private garages on lower level. Affordability provided by flexibility, enhanced by increased potential financial values over time. This also allows for changing housing densities and continuing evolutionary opportunities for every inhabitant.

E. A high-tech advanced construction energy-efficient environment for home, neighborhood, community, work, school, recreation and farming with a connection to nature that lifts spirits and provides comprehensive sustainability suitable for hundreds of years.

500-Year Town does all this. It uses less than 25% of land and looks like a tree-covered hillside. In a square mile it can double typical density and still allow 25% of land for recreation plus maintain remaining 50% as permanent, high quality farm land...an integrated 12 story "eco-techno" community. As if living, it looks and functions in harmony with natural surroundings.

This is practical! It can be done today at cost comparable to typical suburban homes with similar amenities. It is ideal for prime locations important to the future of a metropolitan area before they are used up.
